The way they were

Local farmers got together last week at the Harvey Brown farm to wrap up the fall harvest the old fashioned way.

Neighbors and friends pitched in to "bring in the sheaves" on horse drawn wagons to a steady, old threshing machine that separated out the grain. The occasion drew lots of smiles from a crowd of interested onlookers. The harvest produced 104 bushels of wheat that will be donated to the Canadian Feed Grains Bank and matched by the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) four to one.

Parkland Agri Services provided the donuts for the whole crew. The Thresher is owned by Henry Brown; the binder by Lyle Brown.

County residents won't pay library user-fee

By Ceilidh McClurg

The County of Mountain View has made the decision to join Parkland Regional Library Services after months of debating the need and cost effectiveness of the service.

This decision means residents who fall within the county's jurisdiction will be able to use any library in the county without paying a $60 nonresident fee for each library they wished to belong to. Instead they will only pay the regular membership fee and the remainder of the cost of the service will be included in their tax levies.

The motion to join the library service at a rate of $4.03 per capita only passed by a narrow margin with four councillors in favor and three against. Coun. Jack Peck, Coun. Ian Harvie and Reeve Pat James were opposed.

Peck said he did not believe that the rural residents use the library enough to require them to join. He instead supported the idea of subsidizing those residents who did wish to join a library in the region. He said the cost far outweighed the benefit to rural residents. "To charge $60 per rural family for 12 or maybe 25% of the population that uses the libraries, I just don't think it's any big deal."

County joins Parkland library services

Coun. Diane Davies disagreed, "To some families it is a definite hardship to pay $60," she said adding that she had received at least 15 or 20 letters from residents asking her to support joining Parkland.

Harvie wished to have more time to examine the numbers and get further information. He made a motion to this effect but it was defeated because the general consensus was that it was time to make a decision.

"I feel a decision needs to be made now... it's time to do it," said Davies adding the council had put it off long enough and the issue was already convoluted with an excess of information.

Coun. Dave Derksen said he was worried about some of the implications of joining. "People who don't use the library would subsidize the users," he said even though he did vote in favor of joining the library system.

Parkland provides service to enhance libraries including technical service, cataloguing, bulk purchasing of books, book allotments, a regional lending service, video and audio collection, newsletters, and Internet.

County comptroller, Harold Johnsrude put together a complete package outlining the options for the county councillors, including creating their own library board and not joining Parkland, joining Parkland and using them as the board, forming their own board and not joining Parkland or not participating in either option which would then create the user-pay system. He outlined the cost advantages and benefits for each, but made the recommendation that the board join Parkland and become part of their board.

The County had been trying to decide what they needed for library services, along with all the other towns in the area, since the school board decided it would no longer use a portion of the school taxes to pay for all library services in a jurisdiction.

They then pulled out of their contract with Parkland Regional Library Services as a board. Now, Chinook's Edge School Board will give each school their library dollars and let them decide what route to take which could include joining Parkland, another library service, or trying to provide service on their own.

Because Parkland lost that big contract, they had to restructure their system and attempt to get each municipality to join the service on their own, their very survival depended on it. After much negotiating, all five municipalities in the region, Olds, Sundre, Cremona, Carstairs and Didsbury decided to join.

When Bev Schneider, chief administrative officer for Parkland, heard the news that the County had narrowly voted to join the system she said, "I am absolutely thrilled. It ensures all people in the region have access to equal and quality library services." Rural residents can also use any library in the County without having to pay high user fees at each location.

She explains that the more people who were involved in the system the better cost efficiency, says Schneider. It is a bulk buying concept. And, with the 11,277 additional population of the County of Mountain View that purchasing scenario can only improve she says although she hesitates to suggest the per capita rate might be lowered. Instead, she says, "The allotment may be adjusted to reflect that additional population." The book allotment is $1.30 of the $4.03 that is returned in book purchasing ability to the individual libraries.

Mark Fischer, of the Didsbury Municipal Library, when told of the news, said he was excited because all the local libraries will receive a grant from the government to help improve services on behalf of the rural users.

"That is great news. People will be much happier," said Fischer. He added that about 35% of the usage of the local library is rural and in other areas like Cremona and Sundre the number is even higher.

The Rural Services Grant that will be given is based on 1986 population numbers of 8,886 and will come to a total of $36, 877 which will likely be distributed throughout the five area libraries according to usage.

The money to pay the cost of the service is going to be found in one of two ways suggested by councillors. The first idea was to skim the money off the top of the recreation grant of $23 per capita that is given to the towns to support recreational usage of facilities by rural residents. The other option could be to raise the mill rate by a small percentage.

A letter is being sent to the area towns stating the County's decision and outlining the conditions of their agreement to join Parkland. These conditions include that no municipality may come back to the County for additional subsidies during the first four year term of the agreement, and that any future requests for subsidies may be submitted to the county by July 1, 2002, but if approved by County council may not be effective until Jan. 1, 2003. The last condition of the agreement is that user fees charged by the municipalities must be the same for both rural and urban members. County commissioner, Herman Epp said the County is "very serious" about their terms.

Staff changes with new library service

Parkland Regional Library Service has had made a couple of changes in staffing during the highly important time of restructuring for the service.

Director Margaret Law, who campaigned long and hard to convince municipal libraries to join the revamped service, left in October to take a position at the University of Alberta.

The new management team appointed will be chief librarian, Patricia Silver and chief administrative officer, Beverly Schneider.

Silver has been with Parkland for 11 years, most recently as manager of information services. She holds a Masters degree in Library Science from the University of South Carolina.

Schneider has been with the library service for nine years, most recently as manager of financial services. She is a certified general accountant.

Parkland Regional Library has recently gone through some major renovations after having to re-examine their viability when the school board decided it would only fund school libraries and not municipal.

EYE COORDINATION IN CHILDREN

Common eyesight problems when they are found, must be corrected with glasses or contact lenses. But, there are more causes for such problems than nearsightedness, farsightedness, or astigmatism.

A typical fault is that a child has trouble in smoothly moving both eyes together in all directions. To compensate, a child will move his head instead of his eyes. While the symptom is easily observed, for instance when reading, it is difficult to tell offhand if the problem is in the focusing mechanism or the convergence of the eyes. In either case, such a child will frequently become fatigued. In the case of reading, the child will probably give up after only a few minutes, and eventually develop an aversion to it.

Routinely, an optometrist's examination will test to find out how the child's eyes normally work together. This will include tests for eye movement, eye focusing, eye convergence, and the ability to change direction of gaze.

RCMP bust two growing operations

By Ceilidh McClurg

Didsbury RCMP were led a large hydroponics marijuana operation by an anonymous tipster last week, and that bust led them to another operation which resulted in a combined total haul of approximately $330,000 worth of drugs.

The first arrests took place in Carstairs where local police in cooperation with the Red Deer Subdivision executed a search warrant in a duplex. When inside they found over 190 plants in a hydroponics operation that did not appear to be an amateur grow.

"The whole basement was right full of marijuana plants on both sides of the duplex," said local RCMP Sgt. Ron Platz. At that location a conservative estimate of the street value of the drugs seized was about $230,000.

But, police received information during the arrests in Carstairs that led them to yet another operation in Crossfield that was apparently operated by the same group of individuals.

When searching the Crossfield residence police found about 90 plants of marijuana in addition to hash oil that was being produced at the location. The approximate street value of the drugs seized was $100,000.

At both locations the culprits had bypassed the power meters so they would not be discovered through abnormally high power bills for electricity used in a hydroponics operation.

Warren Hudema, 29 and Rhonda Kepke, 27, both of Carstairs and Allison Schultz, 29, of Calgary have been charged with cultivation of a narcotic, possession of a narcotic for the purpose of trafficking and theft of hydro electricity.

All three were due to appear in Didsbury Provincial Court on Oct. 27 to answer to the charges.

Land available for new horse stables

By Ceilidh McClurg

A proposed project to build new horse barns by the Memorial Complex received a boost in support from the County of Mountain View council last Wednesday.

Council unanimously approved administration to enter into negotiations to lease the land, owned by the County, where the horse barns would go.

County Commissioner, Herman Epp told the council, "I believe there is a good purpose for this building."

Town councillor Dorothy Moore-Anderson couldn't agree more and she has been encouraging town council to support the project. However, at their last meeting council said they were leery to commit Community Matching Facility Enhancement Program (CFEP) grants from the provincial government until they knew positively the County would let them use the land. The next step, of negotiating the cost of the lease can now take place.

The proposed project would demolish the run down barns that are located south of the arena, which have been of a safety concern to horse owners who bring their animals into town for horse shows. In their place a complex that would be 60 feet by 200 feet, with 80 portable stalls would be built north of the grain elevator.

Moore-Anderson says she is pleased that the County recognizes the value of this facility.

"People in town don't have horses so it would be more benefit to the county residents than the town residents," she said.

Gordon Krebs, chair of the Didsbury Livestock Stabling Facility Committee, has said in the past that the number of horse shows coming to Didsbury is declining rapidly and it is because of the poor condition of the stables that currently exist. Moore-Anderson says she has about 30 letters to back that up that have come from horse associations who say they love the arena in Didsbury but are unable to book in town because of the stables and the unsafe condition that might endanger their expensive horses. The committee says they believe the attraction of horse shows only serves to increase business in town.

The plan for the facility is to not have the County or the town responsible for any costs or upkeep of the stables. The Town of Didsbury would only provide the availability to CFEP grants. The grant is available when a donation is made, an equal amount of dollars are available through CFEP.

One of the options for funding currently being discussed is the idea of a "sell-a-stall" campaign whereby a business or person could sponsor a stall and get their name put on it. Any stall sold would again make available matching CFEP money.

"When they make a donation, it worth double its value," says Moore-Anderson.

The estimated cost of the facility is $25,000.

There has not been a cost put on the lease, but Moore-Anderson says she hopes it is a token amount.

Epp retires after 37 years

By Ceilidh McClurg

After 37 years serving with the County of Mountain View, commissioner Herman Epp announced his retirement at last week's meeting.

Epp read aloud a letter to the council with emotion in his voice, "It is with a degree of regret and a substantial amount of trepidation that I serve notice of my intention to retire at year's end from the employment with the County of Mountain View."

The council admitted they knew the announcement was coming for some time.

Reeve Pat James said, "This is not a surprise. We've been talking about this for two or three years... but, it has been a day we sort of wanted to put off." He then turned directly to Epp and told him, "The County of Mountain View has been well-treated by your service."

Epp says he feels he has also been well-treated by the County over his years of service.

Born and raised in the Didsbury area and just out of high school Epp applied for a position with the old school division, which was a branch of the county, in 1960. He was given the job of assistant Secretary/Treasurer with no experience but, he says it was probably better that way because he learned as time went on.

"I just hung around and kept taking the next step," he says. "From there on I've been in almost every department in this office."

About 11 years ago Epp took the position of County Commissioner, the position he will continue to hold until December 31 of this year.

"With but very few exceptions I have looked forward to coming to work each day, anticipating the challenges and rewards that the day would bring," says Epp. He says there have been so many highlights in his career with the County that he can not pinpoint any specifics "I've been on a high most of the time."

However, the couple of times he remembers as being difficult were the two regionalizations he has gone through.

The first being when the County of Mountain View was formed out of the old school division just one year after he started. The second being the regionalization of school boards and the creation of Chinook's Edge out of the County School Board about three years ago.

"For me that was probably as stressful as anything we've gone through here," says Epp. Being a "people kind of person" he recalls that the requirement to down-size the staff was really hard for him because he knew he was affecting the direction of people's lives.

On the high notes, he says he thinks it is interesting to look back at the world circumstances and how they have affected the local level of government over the years. He especially remembers the year of the Cuba crisis and the on the edge feeling that everyone had, including the hundreds of military emergency personnel that used to practice manoeuvres in the County.

Over and above that he says the best part of his tenure has been the people - from the people in the office to the rural folks who he has served.

"The people of this area have been really good to work for," he says with an air of reminiscence. He also said in his letter to the council, "I have had the good fortune of working with a host of councillors and school trustees, and a number of councils and boards of education during my tenure as well as many, many fellow employees." He estimates he has seen about 250 people come and go through the County since 1960.

The County of Mountain View has been the sole employer of Epp during his career and he believes he is the longest continuously serving municipal administrator in the province.

So, he believes what he calls, "The Magic Number," has come and it is just time for him to go, adding that no one has ever pressured him to retire but rather it has always been part of his "program."

His wife of 36 years, Irene will be happy to have him home on their quarter section south of Didsbury.

"Mountain View has always been number one in our life and I've had a very understanding family," says Epp.

He says he and Irene have no set plans of what they will do next, except maybe to spend a little more time out in the field.

"We really have no particular plans. We'll take a look and see what happens," he says.

In the meantime, Epp says he has no intentions of "sitting around with my feet up." He will continue to slowly hand over the reigns to the soon to be new commissioner, Harold Johnsrude. Johnsrude has been learning the ins and outs of the commissioner's position over the past years says Epp because he was intentionally "being groomed for the position."

Johnsrude, the current Comptroller/Treasurer has been with the County since 1978 and will officially take over on the day Epp leaves. Someone will then be either promoted or hired to take over the comptroller position.

Johnsrude says, "Herman and I have worked well together over the years we've been employed by the County. Hopefully the transition will be fairly smooth."

He adds he has really appreciated the experience of Epp and wishes him the best in his retirement.

"He (Epp) has had the best interest of the County at his heart in everything he's done," says Johnsrude.

What do baseball and the Klein government have in common?

Cellidh McCLURG

This weekend I learned that sports and real life do have something in common. (As you can tell I'm not a big sports fan.)

On Sunday night as I sat watching the World Series final and very intense game I got to thinking, "What do baseball and the Klein government have in common?" Here's my theory:

The Florida Marlins took the title of being World Series Champions off the field with them on Sunday night after being in the league for a short five years. Good for them. Much has been made over the owner's seemingly endless supply of cash and the huge payroll he has. Some may even go so far as to say he "bought" the World Series Championship with all his glitters and gold.

And then there are the Cleveland Indians who have come so close so often and always seem to come out the underdog in the end. From what I understand, it's been almost 50 years since they walked off the diamond with that title in their hands. I have to admit I like to cheer for the underdog, so even though I care little about sports, I felt really bad for those guys with their heads hung low feeling like if they had just had an extra million or two to buy that All-Star Team they could have done it.

Then it dawned on me, there is an analogy here, the Cleveland Indians are like the students of Alberta. Those who have the money to be able to afford an education will continue to prosper and those who need to beg, borrow or steal to get there are going to feel like they've almost made it until they realize that the big boot of Klein and his cohorts is up your butt six months later.

Let me first explain that I took the borrowing route (although the thought of begging did cross my mind) and am not feeling a great deal of bitterness towards that little statement that came in the mail last week telling me how much I owe and that I will start repayment at the end of the month.

Student loans used to be handled through the government and at that time you could pretty much stretch out your terms into oblivion if you needed to, because the government of the day realized that education will pay back in the long run. Nowadays, students loans are handled through private institutions, with government only being involved to the point of guaranteeing the loan if I were to run and hide for the next twenty years. Klein with his privatizing hacksaw up there in Edmonton saw fit that the government should not be involved any more than that. Thus, tuition is up and funding for both schools and individuals is down.

That's all fine and good, but did he ever ask how the students would be treated by the banks. Does he realize that our terms are not negotiable and if you have to live in a box to be able to re-pay, then that's tough luck. So, high tuition and student frustration with loans is discouraging for those who are looking at possibly continuing on to post-secondary.

Klein needs his glasses fixed because he is very short-sighted.

It's not that I disagree that the fat needs to be trimmed, but he's carving the turkey to bits and soon there won't be anything left but scraps. Here's my logic: If your population doesn't get educated, they won't get decent paying jobs, they won't be very taxable and less tax dollars the less you'll be able to pay down the debt. So it's all fine and good now, but let's see the real toll his hacksaw has taken in twenty or thirty years down the road.

For example, my stepsister has been planning to go the university to better her future but, watching my frustration for the past week in my attempts to make my payments reasonable, she is wondering if it will be worth it. She said to me on Sunday, "I'm starting to wonder if maybe I shouldn't go now." Oh great, now she'll stay working at the gas station and how much can you really tax $7 per hour?

So, what will be the "Alberta Advantage" then Mr. Klein? Maybe the Florida Marlins could help me understand.

Framework for Discussion right step towards national unity

Dear Editor,

I am writing to respond to Brenda McDonald's recent letters to the Editor in the Carstairs Courier, The Capital, Didsbury Review, Olds Albertan and the Olds Gazette concerning the Calgary Framework for Discussion on national unity. In your letters you raised a number of concerns which I would like to address.

You suggest in your first letter that Alberta's public consultations on national unity are not really designed to listen to public opinion. As you may know, the consultation process Alberta has undertaken includes mailing a brochure with the Calgary Framework to every Alberta household. Albertans can choose to respond to the brochure, call 1-800-883-5551, fax in their comments, respond on the website or participate in consultations at the consistency level through their MLA. I hope that all Albertans will take advantage of this opportunity to convey their thoughts on national unity. Almost 25,000 Albertans have already participated in this consultation process.

I would also note that in your second letter you stated that the Calgary Framework is a 'resolution'. At this point, the Calgary Framework for Discussion is just that - a discussion document to be debated and analysed by Albertans during consultations this fall. Only after we have heard from Albertans on this issue will a resolution of the Legislature be drafted. I can assure you that the input of all those Albertans who choose to participate is important and will become part of the report to the Legislature that will precede the debate this fall.

It has also been brought to my attention that the leader of the Alberta Social Credit party, Randy Thorsteinson, is claiming that Alberta's consultation process is costing $4 million. I would like to take this opportunity to correct that misinformation. In fact, we anticipate that the cost relates to the printing and distribution of the 1.2 million brochures. Let me assure you that every effort is being made to conduct these consultations in the most cost-effective means possible.

Another concern you raised is that the framework is a 'backdoor approach' to amending the Constitution. You also suggested that the framework be put to a referendum instead of consultations. This is not a round of constitutional negotiations. We are asking Albertans about their views on the values that underlie their sense of nationhood. We are not pursuing constitutional change at this time.

By law, the Legislative Assembly of Alberta cannot vote on any proposed constitutional change without the people of Alberta having been consulted first by way of referendum. If a majority of ballots cast in the referendum vote the same way on the question, the vote is binding on the government. Thus, if a majority oppose the proposed amendment, the government cannot then proceed to approve the amendment. Albertans will have the final say on what Alberta's position on constitutional amendments will be.

Finally, you suggest the Premier Klein is indifferent to non-francophones in Quebec. I would suggest to you that Premiers are very aware that the futures of every Canadian are wrapped up in the national unity debate. We will all feel the effects should Canada disintegrate, perhaps none more so than those federalists who live in Quebec. It is clear the Calgary Framework for Discussion is an initial step towards fostering greater national unity.

I hope I have been able to respond to her concerns.

Yours truly,
Richard Marz, MLA

Exchange student in need of host family

Dear Editor,

Friends and Neighbors,
I am writing this newsletter on behalf of STS, Student Travel Schools. STS is an international organization that places exchange students from around the world in Canada as well as other countries. The program allows qualified high school students between the ages of 15 and 18 years of age to live with a family while attending a local high school for one academic year.

Buyisiwe Hlatshwayo, 16-year-old, from Durban, South Africa, was chosen to experience our beautiful area. Buyisiwe enjoys cycling, swimming and playing tennis. Buyisiwe, who has an excellent academic background, would like to come to Canada and learn about our culture and people. Taking on an exchange student is a wonderful way to learn about the world. Host families are only responsible for room and board; exchange students provide their own spending money for extra curricular activities and personal items.

Buyisiwe is eager to visit Canada and to share her own way of life with people she meets during her stay in Canada. We have accepted Buyisiwe into our program on the basis of her maturity, academic achievement, and ability to be flexible. Buyisiwe's big wish right now is to hear from a family in the area before Christmas, who will treat her as a family member and show her the Canadian way of living.

This is an excellent opportunity for us to demonstrate our hospitality and diversity. Our area and its residents have a lot to offer, and this would be an excellent time to show it.

If you would be interested in hosting Buyisiwe, please contact me for additional information. I think it would be a shame to lose this opportunity. I ask you all to consider this, and if you have some room in your hearts and homes, please contact me, Jean Craven at (403) 335-9570.

Sincerely,
Jean Craven

Kids address crossing gates

Dear Editor,

I am totally against putting gates at the railway crossing. For one reason I don't want to pay more in 1998 for my taxes, if I think it won't benefit in any way. It will just be more expensive for us people to pay. We just moved to Didsbury and things are hard enough as it is. For another reason it's a waste of time, because the gates will go down about two kilometres and people will have to wait until the gates go up which the train will have to be two kilometres from the town for the gates to lift. People might be for it in the beginning, then they will be fed up with waiting. That's my opinion, thanks for reading it.

Sincerely,
Jenn Mason

Dear Editor,

I think we should get rid of the crossing gate idea because people should know when to stop at the train tracks and when to go. The bells are supposed to warn people that the train/trains are coming at a very high speed. The lights and very loud bell don't mean to run, ride or drive across the tracks as fast as you can to beat the train. The crossing gates should only be used in big towns and cities because there's more people and cars crowding the streets and pedestrians could get hit more easily.

Sincerely,
Logan Andres

Dear Editor,

I think in some ways we should have the crossings, but I personally don't want them because if the train is just sitting there for more than ten minutes people start to get restless. For example, what if, say I live on one side of the tracks and my mom gets hurt, the hospital is on one side of the other side of the tracks, and we need to take her to the hospital very, very fast. We get to where the crossing is and then we have to wait for a very long time because the train is just sitting there and there is no way we can get past the train tracks. My mom would end up dying because we had to wait so long. I think if we get the train crossings we should have an alarm on them that if the train hasn't moved in ten minutes the crossings should go up then go back down when the train is ready to move.

Sincerely,
Cristina Tokar

Dear Editor,

I am writing to you about the train gates that (the town is thinking of) putting in Didsbury and I think it is a very good idea.

I agree 100% that we should have train gates and I think the town should support it but it is their choice. I think they should have them because it is way safer and kids aren't going to get run over. I also think almost every town should have train gates.

Sincerely,
Ross Sundberg

Dear Editor,

I think that in Didsbury there should be an arm on the crossings or else there will be a few more problems. The tax payers should pay a little more for their own safety. The trains come fast and you can't see them and when the crossing lights are going people speed across the tracks and get hit. David Schiffrers could have been killed but if there was an arm he might have stopped. The crossing lights are there so it wouldn't be so hard just to put an arm on the lights, there's lots of money or are they just too lazy to put it in?

Sincerely,
Justin Wickson

Dear Editor,

I fully agree with the idea of crossing gates. I think that if they are not installed there will be more accidents. Crossing gates help everyone. Next time (if there is a next time) the person might not be so lucky. We need crossing gates.

Sincerely,
Mandy Vanderwal

Enforce the bike helmet laws please

Dear Editor,

I think that there should be a law on helmets and using them. I think this because there have been too many people who have been hurt in accidents as a result of not wearing a helmet. I had an accident on my bike and if I had not been wearing a helmet my head would have been cracked open. That is why I think that there should be a law regarding helmets.

Sincerely,
Diana Visser

Dear Editor,

I think bike helmets should be enforced in Alberta. If this law is not enforced soon, I will get as many kids from Mountainview district to go on strike.

I think there have been too many deaths from people not wearing helmets. Just think of all those dying tax payers.

I think the government should give warnings for two months. Then give tickets of ten dollars for six months then double it for a year then end with $50.

Sincerely,
Wes Schaumleffel

Drinking age should be raised

Dear Editor,

The legal drinking age in my opinion is unacceptable. At 18 many young adults go to parties, and bars and get drunk. They then drive people 13 - 16 years of age home. It is bad enough to drive drunk by yourself, but with friends and people you don't know is terrible. I think that there are times to drink and that I have no problem with like graduation. If you drink and drive, then crash, with people in your car, you are most likely to kill other people in your car, therefore committing more than one crime. Many tragic accidents could have been pre-

Well-deserved

Dear Editor,

I was very delighted to read in the October 15 issue that Lynn Samoisette received the Colonel Lees Thompson Trophy from the Cadet movement for her continuous help and volunteering. It seems to me recognition of Samoisette's community spirit and giving is long overdue. If you are a person "about town" you will see Samoisette helping out at many places.

She cited she "goes where she is needed," and this is true for this fine lady helps out and is at most events in Didsbury. Every town needs a Lynn Samoisette. I'm glad we have her. Congratulations Lynn!

So, I think that the legal age should be 25, when you are more mature and know better.

Free Wood Chips

All residents be advised that free wood chips (while supplies last) are available across the street from the Didsbury Lions Recycling Depot located at the north end of 19th Street.

Recycling wood chips for ground cover is another way to reduce the amount of wood waste burned and landfilled.

So remember, the next time you take your old newspapers, cardboard, tin cans and milk jugs to the Didsbury Lions Recycling Depot, bring a shovel and return home with some free Wood Chips!

Local firefighter practice extricating someone from the twisted metal.

Dangerous offender

Red Deer police believe a man released from an Edmonton jail could pose a threat to central Albertans and they have issued a warning to residents.

John Walter Sebela was released from the Edmonton Institution last week after completing his sentences for robbery and sexual assault involving women. Sebela has also previously served time for sexual assault for offences in Alberta.

Police say they have no information on the exact intentions of Sebela or where he will be residing. He was last seen in Red Deer on Monday.

Sebela is described as 6 foot 3 inches tall and 244 pounds with brown hair and hazel eyes.

Police believe that despite the fact he has served out his complete sentence he is still a risk for women who might come into contact with him. Correctional Services Canada and the Correctional Services Division of Alberta have classified Sebela as a high risk offender who is considered impulsive without internal control of his actions.

Five-0 information correction

The profits from the Annual Five-0 Craft and Bake Sale went to the Didsbury Five-0 Club and not the Five-0 Singers as reported in the outline. Also, Mrs. Halbauer clarified that the attendance at the Five-0 Benefit concert was between 250 and 300 people, with 325 tickets being sold in advance, not 100 as previously reported.

Fire fighters practice for the real thing

By Mike O'Dell

The Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department has been working hard at extending their training in rescue manoeuvres.

The course the department took last weekend was called Vehicle Extrication and Trench Rescue. It is an intensive forty hour course designed to enhance the skills of the firefighters when we have to respond to trench cave ins should the need arise. This training as well as other courses and the meetings held on Wednesday night help the Fire Dept. respond to a great variety of calls.

The Fire Department was helped out by Waymore Services and Auto Recyclers, Res-Q towing and Trailering and Howie's Trucking and Backhoe. The firefighters also used the Didsbury Curling Club as space for the fire department class room.

The course was not just put on for members of the Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department. Other participating department's include the Olds and Cremona Volunteer Fire Departments.

On another note, the students that won the poster contest gobbled up free pizza from Steve Chios of Steve's Place. This contest was in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week.

Don't forget that fire prevention is a year long activity, so please be careful.

Work program promises learning

Leaving for work in the morning, do you have everything? Briefcase, lunch, daytimer, teenager.

Wait, teenager? Well for one special day next week the teen will be an important part of your work day.

November 5 is Take Our Kids to Work Day in Didsbury.

Stemming out of the idea that became the success of the American-based program "Take our daughters to work day," the Take Our Kids to Work Day promises to encourage learning and increase the students insight into the working world.

The Take Our Kids to Work Day asks parents, guardians or friends to take the Grade 9 student in their life to the workplace for one day.

This year will be the first year that Didsbury High School will participate in the program, as well as the first year of it in Alberta.

Principal Mark Leggette says that he is very excited about the initiative.

"Some of our local teachers went to a professional development day in Calgary and saw the information about the program and came back here and proposed it," he says.

Permission slips have gone out to the students as well as preparation tips for parents to help them make the day in the workplace for their child.

Some of the points that the program wishes to make are:

- Children should see their parents in different roles and responsibilities and understand what they do to support the family.

- They should enhance their understanding of individual jobs in the context of the diverse working community.

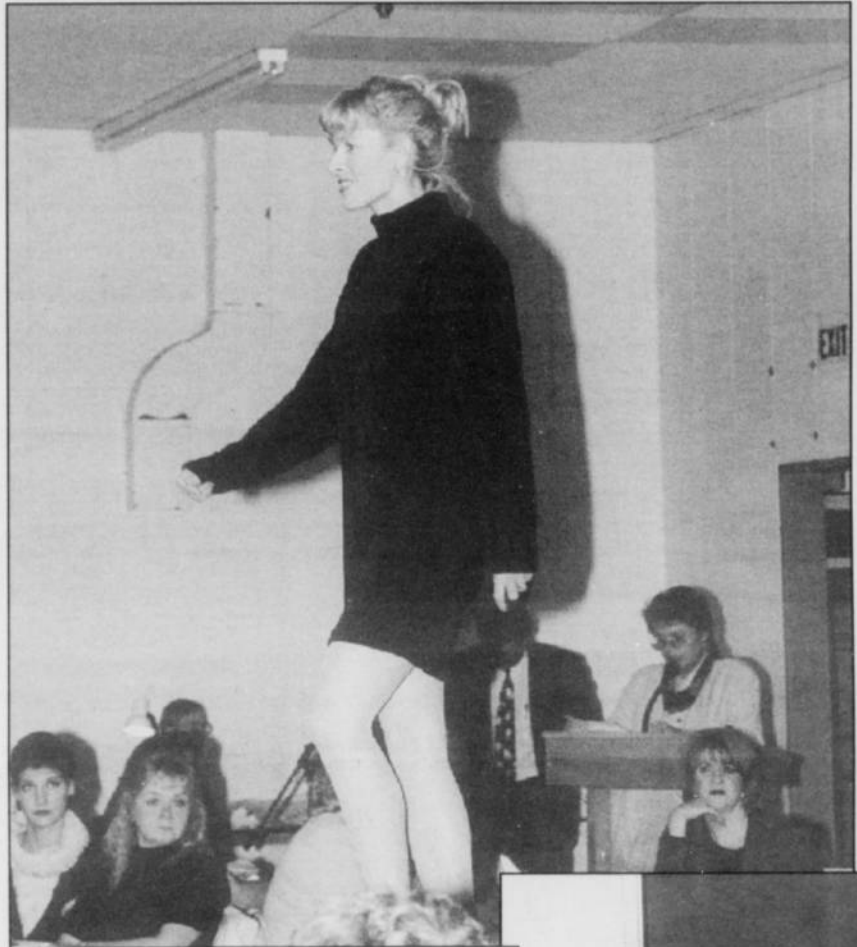

- They should recognize the importance of continuous learning in pursuing career opportunities.

- Students should understand the importance of staying in school.

Leggette says three quarters of the Grade 9 class have already returned their permission slips and he expects to see all the students in a workplace on Nov. 5.

In 1996, approximately 175,000 students went to work with a parent, relative or a volunteer host across Canada.

Leggette says that the school plans to participate in Take Our Kids to Work Day next year as well.

Contest searching for elevator photos

The grain elevator, long a prairie icon, is quickly disappearing from Alberta's landscape. The Provincial Museum of Alberta's Western Canadian History Program is launching a photo search for Alberta's grain elevators. Photographs taken by both professionals and amateurs will be accepted for this combination search and juried contest.

A total of 50 to 60 photographs will be chosen for an exhibition that will travel to museums and art galleries throughout Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. All photos submitted will be digitized and stored on CD Rom for museum research purposes.

Jane Ross, the Curator of the Western Canadian History program says, "We're not only looking for photographs with good composition but also for photographs with good documentation content. This could be an image taken by either a professional or an amateur. I'm looking for current and archival photos, that is, those that may have been taken years ago."

The contest is divided into four categories: professional-archival and professional-current; and amateur-archival and amateur current. Specifically, The Provincial Museum of Alberta is looking for photographs that include elevators past and present; inside or outside; new or old, in-use or abandoned; alone or in a row; in and out of the context of their surroundings; and under construction or destruction. The Museum is encouraging photographers to submit a series of images, taken at different times of the year, to better reflect the elevator and its place in our communities.

Photos must be submitted by November 1, 1998. Submissions by amateurs can be any size, but professional images must be either 8"x10" or 11"x16". There are no limits on the number of entries a person can submit or in the format, although prints are preferable. No frames or mattes, please. For an information package call Jane Ross at 453-9176. Send your submissions any time before the deadline, to Curator, Western Canadian History, The Provincial Museum of Alberta, 12845 - 102 Ave., Edmonton, Alberta T5N 0M6.

News from the Dragon's Den

Greetings from the Dragon's Den. Both the DHS Senior Volleyball teams defeated Carstairs in league play on October 22. Congratulations to both teams. The Dragons will host Olds at Westglen on October 29 at 5 p.m. Come and cheer on the teams.

Applications for both the University of Alberta and the University of Calgary are now available at the office. Please see Mr. Neuberger.

University of Calgary Entrance Scholarship forms for the Outstanding Achievement Awards and Matriculation Awards are also available. The deadline for these applications has been changed and is now December 1, 1997, so get your form as soon as possible.

The Post Secondary Review is on October 28 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at Olds College Alumni Centre. This is for anyone who wants information on post secondary education and specific schools.

Congratulations to Michael Pieper who received a Guaranteed Admission Scholarship and a University of Lethbridge Entrance Scholarship from the University of Lethbridge.

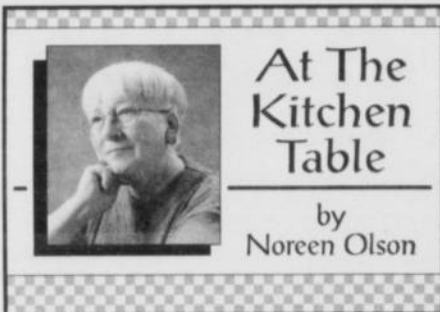

Congratulations also to Richard Simons who received a Board of Governor's Achievement Scholarship from the University of Lethbridge.

Congratulations also to Joanne Walker who received a Guaranteed Admission Scholarship, a University of Lethbridge Entrance Scholarship and the IODE Award in Music from the University of Lethbridge.

Everyone at DHS is very proud of you.

Finally, tomorrow, Thursday, October 30, DHS will have our Halloween celebrations so come to school in costume. Friday, October 31 is the teachers' Division-wide Professional Development Day, so there will be no school.

In one of my Mom's boxes of old letters and greeting cards I found a five by seven print of cows drinking at a woodland pool. The picture is very peaceful, pastel, green and softly misty. On the back of the print it says, "Albert Mattern, June 28, 1924." Uncle Albert would have been 17 in 1924 and I think the handwriting is that of his sister, Jeanne, aged 15 at the time. As adults, Jeanne and Albert had a huge falling out and went to their graves after 30 years of not speaking to each other, but that's another story.

I loved the lush little landscape and I framed it, and hung it with a grouping of similar colors, but I wasn't satisfied. I wanted to know who painted the original and what the colors had been before 70 years of fading, and was this the whole painting and was there any possibility of getting another print, maybe a bigger one? There must have been a zillion copies of Constables's Hay Wain sold over the years and an equal number of Turner Shipwrecks and Monet Waterlilies, maybe my little print was only slightly less famous and available somewhere as a nice crisp 12 by 17. I'm afraid I became a bit compulsive on the subject. I could not pass a store that had one of those huge, black, loose-leaf files full of prints. I paged through catalogues, scanned art books, asked glassy eyed clerks who only gestured vaguely at their display and said things like, "this is all we got," and "didja look inna book?" Sometimes they asked me if I knew the artist and of course I didn't, and then it was my turn to look vague.

I showed the print to my artistic friend Alan Reid and Alan made a very creditable copy, which I like just fine. That should have been the end of the subject but I still wanted to know who the original artist was so I continued to page through Print Files and scan Art Books. I did find one more copy but it was only slightly larger than mine, a bit more faded and hanging on the wall of a house in Heritage Park. Nobody there knew where the picture had come from and certainly not who painted the original. I would love to have a larger version of my print but Heritage Park does not sell artifacts and if I were to become an art thief it would not be for something this small and faded. I might be tempted if they had the original.

At the National Gallery in Ottawa I found a painting by Aelbert Cuyp. 1620 - 91. The style was very similar to my print, trees, cows, sun dappled water. I have no idea how to pronounce "Cuyp". Cup? Coop? Keep? This made it difficult for me to make inquiries that sounded intellectual and crude and as a prairie person in the nation's capital I was already feeling intimidated and didn't need to look stupid besides. I did write down the name and last month when I was sorting through some papers of my own I ran across the reference to good old Aelbert. I phoned the Didsbury Library, (they are very good about this sort of thing), I spelled Cuyp, because I still don't know how to pronounce it, and within a few days they had found and brought in two books with references to Aelbert Cuyp and to Dutch painting. The books are fascinating. I did not find my print but I found out that I love all romantic Dutch landscapes and the people who painted them. I want to see more of the work of Constant Troyon who was famous for his cattle pictures, Cornelius Ketel and Paulus Potter who were known as specialists in animal painting. I want books on Hobbemba, Birchem and Ruisdall any one of whom might have painted my cows, or might have done the background and had Troyon or Potter or even Cuyp do the cows. Some of them did that. I also want to find out more about Theodore Rousseau who was a French landscape painter influenced by Troyon and Constable. Maybe Troyon did his cows too. And maybe a dear little English Art teacher did my painting while on holiday in Brighton.

If I never find my print the search for it continues to be rewarding.

Community Coalition for Tobacco Reduction

Health Authority 5, through an Action for Health Initiative, has offered funding support to community health promotion projects. One such project in Didsbury and area about to get underway is the development of a Community Coalition for Tobacco Reduction. We are currently recruiting interested individuals to become members of the coalition. The role of the coalition would be to examine tobacco reduction needs specific to Didsbury and area and plan strategies to address these needs. Some examples that other communities have looked at are tobacco sales to minors, bylaws, youth education, school policies, and public awareness. To be healthy and prosperous as individuals and as a community, each of us needs to be more involved in health promotion and the opportunity is now available.

If you have an interest in decreasing tobacco use among our youth, have any other interest surrounding tobacco reduction, or would like more information, please contact Tara Briggs at the health unit, 335-7292. The coalition group will meet approximately once per month with the initial meeting set to go October 29, 6:30 - 7:30 in the Education Conference Room of the Didsbury Hospital.

Health File: Breast health

By Donna Mae-Walker,
Public Health Nurse.

Throughout time, people have been infatuated by the human breast.

But it is important for women to know their own body and to understand and know what changes can occur with her breasts.

All women's breasts differ but have similar characteristics. Breasts range from very small to very large.

Breast tissue begins at the collar bone and continues down to the last few ribs, from the breastbone out to the underarm.

The area surrounding and including the nipple is called the areola. It ranges in color from pink to brown/black, depending on a woman's complexion.

The size and shape of the areola varies, as may the direction the nipple points. Many women have hair surrounding the nipple. There may be "goose bumps" in the areola, called Montgomery glands.

Often there is a ridge of fat at the bottom of the breast where it folds over on itself.

The breast itself is made mostly of fat, veins, arteries, nerves and breast tissue.

Behind all these layers lies the chest wall muscles and ribs. Breast tissue feels firm and rubbery, while fat is softer and more pliable.

In turn each person's breast will be more or less "lumpy" due to the coarseness or firmness of these structures.

Because each breast is individual, it is important for a woman to become familiar with the changes her breasts undergo at different times in her menstrual cycle and again to changes they undergo during menopause.

It will take a few episodes of exploring before a woman is able to distinguish her own physical makeup.

Become familiar with what is the normal size, contour and color of your nipple and breast tissue. This can be done by simply looking in the mirror with your clothes off from the waist up and turning slowly from side to side, noting all the areas mentioned above.

This is the first step in breast self-examination.

Breast self-examination is done in the privacy of a woman's home, at a convenient time for her, and at the appropriate time of the month. Start with the visual check described above. Then raise your arms above your head and behind your ears, pressing the palms of your hands together. Do the visual inspection again. Then, still standing, using the opposite hand for each side, with the other arm hanging freely, feel the breast using a flat hand with fingers held tightly together.

Move back and forth across the breast in a straight line pattern making small circles. Cover the full area, including the nipple, by sliding the hand down one finger width for each pass. Bend the wrist, not the fingers, to go around the curves, remembering to keep constant contact with the skin. Don't forget to check the underarm area. Relax the arm down and do the other side. Repeat the same steps and pattern lying down.

Remember that this is a check for something that was not there last month.

Normal breast tissue is "lumpy" in texture, but a lump will feel like a hard knot and can vary in size. It is important that any lumps found are checked by your family doctor as soon as possible. Women worry that lumps mean cancer. There can be fear of disfigurement or pain. Not all lumps mean cancer. Early detection of any changes and/or abnormalities felt in the breast is important for a woman's health and even her life.

There is much to be learned about "why's" and "how come's" and the treatment of lumps in women's breasts for which it seems there are few answers. However, general good health, including regular exercise, proper eating habits, low alcohol intake and not smoking all come together to play a part in a healthy lifestyle and survival. Make a personal commitment to take the time once a month to do a breast self-examination and have an annual physical check-up (including a breast exam by your doctor). At the age of 50 to 69 years have a mammogram done every two years.

Breast health may be a scary topic. By talking as women about our health concerns and knowing about our own bodies, breast health can be a more comfortable and less embarrassing topic.

For more information about breast health and breast self-examination, call your local Public Health Nursing office.

Carstairs Annual Pioneer Supper

By Betty Ayers

The Carstairs and District Historical Society will be hosting the 12th Annual Pioneer Supper on Saturday, November 1 at the Carstairs Half Century Club.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

This year we will be honoring a very special senior. Because the wearing of the "turn of the century" costumes were such a hit at the Garden Party, we are encouraging everyone to search through their closets and find that special outfit to wear again.

If you don't have a "turn of the century" costume, don't worry about it. Come and enjoy the festivities anyway.

This year we have a singer/storyteller/comedian coming to entertain you. Guaranteed to get a chuckle out of everyone.

Once again we will have a doorprize. The draw for the Afghan will be made at the supper.

Tickets for the Pioneer Supper are available at the Roulston Museum. Tickets are limited, get your tickets early and don't be disappointed. Treat yourself to a good ol' fashioned git-together. Good food . . . great fun.

The museum is open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday. For more information call 337-3710.

10 SYMPTOMS OF HEARING LOSS

1. Do you experience ringing in your ears?
2. Do people seem to mumble more frequently?
3. Have you been told that you speak too loudly?
4. Do you often ask people to repeat what they have said?
5. Do you find telephone conversation increasingly difficult?
6. Does your family complain that you play the T.V. or radio too loudly?
7. Do you hear, but have trouble understanding some of the words?
8. Do you have trouble hearing when you are not facing the speaker?
9. Do you have difficulty understanding conversation when you are in a large group or crowd?
10. Are you no longer able to hear normal household sounds such as dripping faucet, ticking clock, or ringing of doorbell?

If you answered "YES" to 4 or more of these, you may have a hearing impairment. It's recommended that everyone have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly.

BETTER HEARING THROUGH PROFESSIONAL CARE

Way of life: "Did you turn time backward?"

The following headline may have appeared in many newspapers this past Sunday morning:

Did you turn time backward? The article beneath that caption may have said something like this:

"This is the day of the annual shift from daylight-saving time to standard time. The change was made officially this morning at 2 a.m. when it became 1 a.m. in compliance with the Uniform Time Act."

On Sunday morning, in households all across our province and nation the above headline was echoed and re-echoed. "Did you turn the time back?"

When you think of it, this is really a foolish question. It's impossible to "turn time back." We might make an adjustment in our reckoning of it. We can reset our clocks.

But time itself is beyond our control. It can neither be sped up, stopped nor turned back. It marches right on! How futile the sentiment expressed in those words: "Backward, turn backward, o' time in your flight; make me a child again, just for tonight."

We cannot return to the days of our youth; neither can we recall past failures, nor recapture lost opportunities. Because of this the "now" is precious. It must never be squandered. No wonder the apostle Paul tells us to "Walk in wisdom . . . , redeeming the time." (Colossians 4:5)

Let me challenge you with this question: How have you been spending your days and hours? Selfishly? Wisely? Complaining? Thankfully?

The important issue is that tomorrow, today will be yesterday!

You may turn the clock back but not time! Use your time wisely for those things that count for eternity.

Thought: Time wasted can never be recovered; no man ever possessed the same moment twice. (Alexander)

Advanced Funeral Planning

One of the most thoughtful ways for you to show your family that you care... is pre-arrangement.

In the many years that Mountain View Funeral Chapels has been serving families in this area, we have maintained the belief that good service traditionally has been the most important aspect of our business. That's one reason why we offer preneed as part of our service. Families we have served tell us how important it is to know their wishes will be carried out as requested. They are excited about the prospect of selecting their own hymns or readings. They know their families or friends will feel relieved and fulfilled because such important details that are often forgotten in the time of grief have been taken care of in advance. How often, after the funeral, we hear a family say, "I wish we had remembered Mother or Dad's favorite song or poem."

Prearranging or prefinancing a funeral is easy to do. We, at Mountain View Funeral Chapels, want to answer your questions and concerns. It is an integral part of our service. Please call or stop by our funeral home for additional literature and/or to discuss prearranging with our Family Service Representative. This simple gesture of consideration can help your family.

Good service ... it all adds up to "Peace of Mind"

Faces

a brief glimpse at the people and events in our community

Please come in . . .

You know, you've driven past those houses a thousand times, and each time you've said, "I wonder what they are like on the inside?"

For one special day anyone will be able to take a browse through some of the special homes in Didsbury thanks to the Heritage Tea and Tour on December 13.

"We held it two years ago and it was very successful," says one of this year's organizers Shawna Brassard, who along with Marlene Fizer, Donna Gole and Sheryl Rothert is organizing this year's tour. "So this year it is back by popular demand."

The tour follows a set plan with trips around to many special houses in town followed by a tea at the Museum.

"Tickets are limited for the tour," says Brassard, who also organized the tour two years ago.

Each of the homes will be decorated for Christmas and the home owner or their designate will provide the narration for the tour.

"It is nice to see these people give something to the community," says Brassard. "I think people enjoy seeing the history behind the older homes in Didsbury and they enjoy the commentary of the home owners," says Brassard.

Brassard says they have yet to decide on which houses to include in the tour.

Tickets will be on sale either November 6 or 8 and are available through Brassard at 335-8236 or Marlene Fizer at 335-4892. Tickets, which are $10, will also be on sale at the Country Christmas Store on 20th Ave. All tickets offer a 10% discount at the Country Christmas Store on December 13. Proceeds of the tea go towards the Pathfinders.

300 served!

It was a milestone for Bev Cheesmur as she welcomed her 300th new citizen in three years to Didsbury as part of the Welcome Wagon program.

Graham Allport, who recently moved here from Penticton, B.C. was pleased to accept all the gifts from local merchants that come with the Welcome Wagon.

Cheesmur says she has seen a lot of people move into our community in the three years she has been working for Welcome Wagon.

She says that most people move to Didsbury for the friendly small-town atmosphere. A sentiment shared by Allport.

"I didn't want to live in Calgary," he says. "Didsbury has character."

Cheesmur says she has welcomed people to the area from all over the world and all are pleased with the wonderful facilities the town has to offer.

A career less ordinary

When Jan Irwin graduated as a Registered Nurse (RN) from University in New Glasgow, Nova Scotia in 1959 she knew she wanted a change of pace.

Little did she know where it would lead her.

Irwin was a small town person who decided she wanted to try Alberta for a change and moved to Red Deer to work as a nurse.

But the small town girl in her didn't like the city and destiny led her to Didsbury.

"I wrote a letter to the hospital here and the rest is history I guess," says Irwin, who moved here in 1961, worked as an RN at the hospital and met and married her husband Don.

She has recently retired, and she leaves well versed in the art of working at a small town hospital.

"Rural hospitals have everything," says Irwin. "You saw cuts and bruises and serious injuries and everything in between." Irwin still remembers the first baby she delivered.

"I was scared spitless," she laughs. "And now, I see him and he is so big, I can't believe he was that little baby."

She has worked in all parts of the hospital, and claims emergency as her favorite.

"I spent five years there and I really enjoyed it."

Irwin said the hardest part of spending so many years at one hospital was seeing people die, especially those she had seen come into the world.

"I have seen quite a few tragedies," she says.

But she has also been happy to see the people she helped deliver now come to the hospital to bring their own children into the world.

"I have seen a lot of changes to the nursing profession," she says. "And most of those have been on the technological side."

She says the rapid advancements technology has made in the medical field just blow her mind.

"Big changes like the air ambulance have been a wonderful addition to the health care we provide here," she says.

But Irwin says the most important fundamentals in nursing is something that remains constant.

"CARE is very important," says Irwin as her piece of advice for people new to nursing. "Never forget that word, always develop a positive bedside manner."

The staff at the hospital presented Irwin with 56 roses in honor of her retirement. She says she will take a break for a while but she might go back to the hospital to work a casual shift or two.

New denturist has a biting chance

By Ceilidh McClurg

Smile! All of Didsbury is watching you and David Thomas wants to make sure your pearly whites are worthy.

Thomas has just opened his denture clinic in the Victoria Mall just off Main Street and last week he gave The Review a tour around and a demonstration on how to make artificial teeth.

This is the first time those who require dentures don't have to leave town to get that perfect smile. Especially the natural smile of the Swiss Denture technique which he has specialized in for 23 years.

"The biggest advantage for the people of Didsbury and surrounding area is that they don't have to travel," says Thomas as he scrapes away at the mould used to make a bunch of loose teeth a cohesive unit.

"We're going to be in Didsbury three days a week at first," he adds. After the first year in business, Victoria Denture Clinic, which is owned jointly by his wife who is also a dentist and himself, will be a full-time venture.

Thomas is an artist in many ways, first he built his own office, complete with two labs, an examination room and a reception area. Second, he carefully sculpts gums and teeth and says it is a great creative outlet that also gives him the chance to be around people.

"Both my wife and I really enjoy dealing with people. That has to be the best part of it. I also really enjoy the creative part of making dentures," he says with a pearly grin of his own.

MY, WHAT LOVELY TEETH YOU HAVE
David Thomas, certified denturist, molds a new set of chompers for a client.

This is the second denture clinic that he and his wife, Ellen, own. The other one being a full-time service in Three Hills where his wife runs the show and he commutes into Didsbury.

Thomas has been a denturist for a total of over 35 years, in which time he has worked in Arizona, Red Deer and Calgary.

But, he says, there is nothing like a small town and the personalized service he can offer when he can get to know each of his clients one on one.

"We really like the small town atmosphere."

He explains that he feels another benefit of his office is that from the start of the measurements to the final finished set of dentures he can be sure the set is perfectly suited and adjusted according to the clients needs because he has his own lab on location.

"We have a complete modern lab, so all the work will be done right here in Didsbury," he says.

"We can do whatever comes in." His services include new dentures, partial dentures, relines and repairs.

The plans for Victoria Mall Denture Clinic have been in the works for about three months and the office opened only one week ago.

"The response in just this short time has been good."

ALBERTA AGRICULTURE, FOOD AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Regional Advisory Services

By Laura Lee Billings

Sustaining economic development for survival is the most important major issue facing agriculture and community leaders in Alberta over the next ten years. Other major issues which ranked high by leaders in Alberta communities included:

2. influencing political processes and government decisions affecting agriculture industry and rural communities.

3. Maintaining quality of life, services and the sustenance of the rural community.

The biggest barrier to leaders is time. They lack the time to lead. Other barriers include marketing knowledge needed in the global context and rural population's struggle against changes reshaping rural communities.

These same leaders agreed that the development of leadership capacity is essential for the agriculture industry and rural communities to meet future needs. They identified behaviors critical to lead the agriculture industry and rural communities though the changes that are resulting from external forces such as globalization, trade agreements etc.

These transformational leadership behaviors were thought to be very important for success at this time:

- establishing communication networks.
- inspiring a shared vision for the future.
- continual learning
- showing openness to new ideas
- willingness to identify and

address new problems

These are all skills which are critical to dealing with change.

Transformational leadership involves change, shifting paradigms, identifying problems, working together to make decisions and collectively taking action. Doing any one of these can be a challenge to individuals, industry and communities.

These ideas are part of a research study, Transforming Rural Leadership for the 21st Century. These results have real implications for how we choose and train successful leaders for the future. It is an excellent piece of research that is easy to read.

This column was adapted from an article by Kathleen Ozmun, RDS - Organizations, Smoky Lake.

September harvest weather warm

The provincial average temperature was 2.2 degrees above normal and the provincial average precipitation was near normal for September in Alberta providing good harvest weather for most Alberta farmers.

"The first widespread frost occurred between Sept. 17 and 19," says Peter Dzikowski, agri-weather resource specialist with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. "That's about one week later than the average first fall frost date for most Alberta agricultural regions. Temperatures dropped to between 0 and -4.3 degrees. The frost was followed by warm, dry weather until the end of the month, providing ideal harvest weather."

The provincial average temperature was 2.2 degrees above the 1961 to 1990 average of 10.4 degrees. Most Alberta locations reported monthly average temperatures ranging from two to four degrees above normal. The averages are based on data recorded at 59 Environment Canada climate stations across the province.

"September is usually the fifth wettest month of the year," says Dzikowski. "Provincial average precipitation of 46.4 mm was 2 mm above the 1961 to 1990 average of 44.4 mm."

The southern region was the driest, reporting less than half of normal September precipitation. The central, northeast and northwest regions reported near normal precipitation and the Peace region reported almost double the average precipitation. Amounts of 6.6 to 141.5 mm, or 18 to 351% of normal were reported in Alberta.

Red Earth recorded the greatest precipitation departure, receiving 141.5 mm of precipitation or 351% of normal. Bow Island reported the greatest temperature departure, 3.9 degrees above the monthly average of 12.9 degrees for September.

Maine-Anjou tops 1997 trial

When it comes to feeding steers for profit, Maine-Anjou are tops. The bold statement is backed up by strong data from the 1997 Olds College "Steer-A-Year" trial.

The annual trial, conducted by the college's Animal Science department runs from October to April. The test compares five steers from differing breeds during the 140 day time frame (five 28-day weigh periods). The 1997 test saw 13 beef breeds represented.

Olds' final data showed the Maine-Anjou steers placing first in the profit category, averaging $165.75 per head. The five steers sold for an average of $986.82 each. Their average finished live weight was 1,155 pounds each.

Maine-Anjou also placed consistently well in other categories. The breed ranked first in Total Grain, averaging 517 pounds of gain per steer. Charolais was second at 488.6 pounds per steer.

Maines placed second among all breeds in Feed Efficiency, needing only 5.5 pounds of feed for a pound of gain. Murray Greys were first at 5.05 pounds of feed per pound of gain.

In the categories of Total

Feed Consumed and Cost per Pound of Gain, Maines placed third and fourth best respectively.

The Olds Trial follows the steers through the packing plant, offering further information. The Maine carcasses all yielded as A1 with an average 62.4% Lean Meat Yield, which was fourth best.

Rod McLeod, general manager of the Canadian Maine-Anjou Association, was impressed by the results. He suggested the data confirmed what many cattlemen already know: "The Maine-Anjou feeder steer is a money-maker. We're seeing evidence of that again here."

The Olds "Steer-A-Year" trial began in 1984. The steers are fed in the same environments using the same feed under strictly monitored conditions. All the breeds are housed together, but in separate breed pens.

The steers are purchased by the College through breed association representatives, explained Sandi Jones, a beef instructor at Olds.

When the steers are purchased by the College through breed association representatives, explained Sandi Jones, a beef instructor at Olds.

When the steers are finished (as determined by the students using ultrasound measurements), the steers are sold to XL Foods Ltd., Calgary, and sent to their packaging plant.

The 1998 trial is geared for an early October 1997 start-up with the first 28-day weigh in early in November.

New pricing option for wheat

A new proposal that would give farmers better access to world wheat prices without affecting the Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) monopoly was unveiled today by the Western Canadian Wheat Growers Association (WCWGA).

The plan would allow farmers to use the futures market to lock in prices on up to 25% of their annual wheat production, while still marketing the grain through the CWB. The cash pricing option was put forward as an amendment to the new CWB Act (Bill C-4) at a Standing Committee of Agriculture and Agri-Food hearing today in Ottawa.

"This concept is a win-win because it strikes a middle ground," says Wheat Grower President Larry Maquire. "Those who want the flexibility to respond to market signals will have more risk management tools at their disposal and the security of single-desk marketing will be retained for others."

Under the cash pricing option, the producer would sell a futures contract on a U.S. commodities exchange for part or all of his/her 25% allotment. Upon delivery of the wheat, the contract would be turned over to the CWB which would buy back the futures contract and sell the wheat to the customer. The producers would be paid the futures price minus the basis deduction from the CWB.

"It's a simple concept, it's equitable in that all producers have the same opportunity to take advantage of it and it gives us another tool to deal with the high cost of farming," says Wheat Grower Vice-President Kevin Archibald.

The Wheat Growers say without substantive amendments, Bill C-4 will only deepen divisions in the farm community on grain marketing issues.

"The entire discussion of recent years has focused on farmers' demands for more marketing choices but this legislation does a 180 degree turn by introducing a mechanism to take choices away," says Archibald.

The Wheat Growers are calling for deletion of the clause in Bill C-4 that allow crops to be added to the monopoly. "Producer and processor groups representing those commodities are united in their opposition to the so-called 'inclusion clause,'" says Archibald. The WCWGA presentation also advocates the removal of all barley from the CWB monopoly.

Submitted by the Western Canadian Wheat Growers Association.

CONSTRUCTION

THERE'S NO ALTERNATIVE TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages.

It's a proven performer. Rugged Tough. Durable. A concrete basement will never burn or rot.

And concrete is safe. Quality-controlled, concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

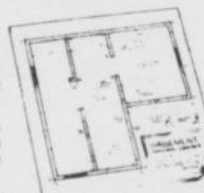

Concrete is an energy-wise choice. A concrete basement needs little heat or air-conditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality controlled concrete. The best basement building material.

Players and coaches suspended

By Marty Knack

Two Alberta Junior Hockey League players have been suspended for four games each and two assistant coaches have been suspended for three games each as a result of incidents in games Oct. 25 in Fort McMurray and Lloydminster.

Greg Johnson of the Olds Grizzlies and Nathan Gaumont of the Fort McMurray Oil Barons have been suspended for four games each for leaving their respective benches to join a "line brawl" with 6:53 remaining in the game in Fort McMurray.

St. Albert Saints' assistant coach Reyn Johnson and Lloydminster Blazers' assistant coach Kent Staniforth have been suspended for three games each. They began yelling at each other at the conclusion of the game in Lloydminster and had to be restrained by on-ice officials when they challenged each other.

St. Albert and Lloydminster have also been fined $300 each.

Greg Johnson and Gaumont left their respective benches to join an altercation involving all players on the ice, including both goalies. Greg Johnson and Gaumont were each assessed a double minor penalty for leaving the bench, a major penalty for fighting and three game misconducts.

Reyn Johnson and Staniforth were each assessed a gross misconduct for making a travesty of coaching behavior.

Reyn Johnson was walking across the ice to the St. Albert dressing room when he turned and began taunting individuals on the Lloydminster bench. Staniforth returned the taunts, then ventured on to the ice to challenge Reyn Johnson before being restrained.

Colts closer to first place after two wins

By Brian Longeway

The Mountainview Colts weren't horsing around this past weekend in their hockey games against the Big Country Raptors and the Airdrie Thunder. They started the weekend in a three way tie for second place. In the south division of the Heritage Junior B Hockey League. They were four points behind Airdrie Thunder. After they wrapped up the Raptors and thunder struck the Thunder they are only one game out of the first place in the division.

On Friday, Oct. 24 in Drumheller the Colts quickly drew their revolvers and had shot four goals before the ten minute mark of the first period. In the remaining ten minutes of the period they managed to find the penalty box a few times thus they were unable to keep organized. They scored one more goal in the second period.

During the fast and exciting third period both teams were able to dent the twine twice. The Raptors had many scoring opportunities throughout the game but Pross a young "Future Junior A" goalie made many exceptional saves. He kept the opposition frustrated all evening.

At Didsbury, Saturday, Oct. 25, Mike Cornforth our veteran goal tender, very capably stole the Thunder from the Airdrie Thunder hockey team. He anticipated every Airdrie shot. The action raced from end to end throughout the game.

Airdrie scored a power play goal in the first period and maintained the lead until just nineteen seconds remained in the second period. Airdrie regained the lead after five minutes in the final period but less than five minutes later the Colts tied the game.

Within two minutes Jason Haffner got a hat trick giving the Colts a three to two lead. The fans were on the edge of their seats for the rest of the game as the teams took turns rushing the opposition testing the defence and goalies. But neither team could score thus the Colts won.

Next weekend the Colts host Banff in Carstairs on Saturday, Nov. 1 and travel to Stettler on Sunday, Nov. 2 to meet the North Division leading team.

Visit the Colts on the Internet at <http://www.geocities.com/Heartland/Prairie/9794/colts3.htm>

Don't forget minor the Colts have space available on the internet for minor hockey.

Didsbury Rockets blast Olds Novice #3's

By Joan Belitsky

Welcome to all the boys on the Didsbury Novice #1 team (better known as The Rockets). There's no doubt that this will be a great year for the team as coach Bruce Robertson and assistant coach Lewis Klinck have already been priming the guys' skills and motivation.

For the '97 - '98 hockey season, The Rockets are represented by: Colby Drylsdale, Shayne Logan, Justin Mitchell, Grant Jensen, Clayton Lowther, Colby Willebrands, Zachary Belitsky, Cordell Wilshusen, Jesse Bayley, Keenan Christensen and Josh

Robertson.

The Rockets played their first league game bright and early Saturday, Oct. 25 against the Olds Novice #3's.

Josh Robertson scored the first two goals of the game with Cordell Wilshusen assisting on the second goal. Logan and Wilshusen assisted Edwards with his first goal of the game.

Second period scoring went to Wilshusen (two goals), Robertson and Edwards (two goals), with assists by Robertson, Bayley, Wilshusen and Logan.

The Rockets capped off the third period with a goal from Robertson and one from Edwards. Wilshusen, Logan and Christensen pitched in with assists.

Drysdale lived up to the #1 on the back of his jersey with some awesome saves in net, and the team kept Olds' scoring to two points for a final outcome of Didsbury ten, Olds two.

OVERTIME

by Robert Magee

Can anyone tell me what happened to the guys who played hockey for the love of the game? Do you know where they are? I do.

They're either retired or playing in the latter stages of their career. They're guys like Wayne Gretzky, Ray Bourque, Larry Murphy, Jari Kurri and Chris Chelios. These athletes play because they have a burning desire to compete and to win. Can you name a time in which any one of these players held out because the owners didn't pay them enough.

Look at Bourque; played his whole career in Boston, where he never won a Cup. With Boston in a young and rebuilding mode, Bourque could have gone to a Stanley Cup contending team but instead he chose to stick with Boston and finish out his career where he started.

Let's compare him to Eric Lindros. Lindros, drafted by the Quebec Nordiques, actually refused to put on the Nords jersey on draft day saying he did not want to play for such a poor team. What kind of load is that? Very, very, very few kids ever get the chance to play in the big times. So this egotistical teenager decides he had the right to choose where he will play.

Ridiculous isn't it? That's like me saying, "Sorry Gene, I won't write anymore articles until we get a settlement on my contract renegotiation. I guess I'll just keep my writing style in good form by training at home or with a minor league newspaper. Sure $1.3 million U.S. is a little high but hey, that's the going rate for sophomores these days."

The problem is the Didsbury

Review would probably function quite fine without my services. That is why some players like Paul Kariya, and Peter Bondra can hold out for what they want. They know their teams cannot go too long without them. I guess things backfired on Sergei Federov, huh?

It's a complicated issue with many different sides and points of view. It's just too bad it has to conflict with the rest of the players, the fans and the game itself.

Good start for Didsbury Midgets

By Amy Jackson

The Didsbury Midgets began their 97/98 season league play with a disappointing loss to Chestermere, but then followed up with a four point weekend as they trounced Okotoks, and claimed a victory against Airdrie in the final seconds of the game.

The Chestermere Lakers visited Didsbury on Oct. 18. Tyson Youngs dominated the scoring for Didsbury with three goals, but Chestermere went home with a seven to four win.

Didsbury travelled to Okotoks on Oct. 25. Tony Shipley played a strong game in net, and Brad Jackson led the scoring with six goals and two assists to lead the team to a ten to three victory.

On Oct. 26 Didsbury opened the scoring at home against the Airdrie Broncos with a goal by Ryan Korschuh early in the first period. Airdrie scored once in the second and twice in the third period. Airdrie scored once in the second and twice in the third period to take the lead. Goals from Brian Pieper and Ryan Korschuh evened the score, then Brad Jackson beat the Broncos goaltender to end the scoring at four to three with 36 seconds left on the clock.

Brad Jackson and Brian Pieper lead the team in points with 11 and 10 points respectively. Tyson Youngs follows with six, followed by Ryan Korschuh with five. Chris Stevens and Cody Harris each have three points, Lee Penner has two and Chris Israelson, Mark Collins and Sean March have one point each.

The next midget home game is Nov. 1 against Cremona at 5:15.

New court ready for players

By Hilary Clark

Get your hightops laced up and get ready to hit the blacktop.

Thanks to some hardworking volunteers Didsbury High School opened the outdoor basketball court on Saturday.

Edna van Dam, a member of the parent council says she didn't quite anticipate all the work involved when she volunteered to spear head the campaign to bring an outdoor court to DHS.

"If it wasn't for all the help I got from all the great volunteers, this court wouldn't be here today," says van Dam.

van Dam offered two years ago to bring the court to fruition, she jokingly says as part of a plot to get her own two sons off her driveway.

The court, located across the street from the high school's east entrance and on the corner of 20 Ave, is an official size blacktop court.

"It should stand up well," says van Dam. "I researched into the proper way to lay down the asphalt so there should be no humps."

She says it is important to remember that the court is not just for students at the high school.

"It is for anyone who wants to play basketball," says van Dam who hopes the court will become a family destination for the hoop starved.

She's says she is not really surprised at how long it took to get the basketball court, because everything was donated, or paid for through grants.

"It is important for parents to realize that there are grants out there for the asking for parents who want to build a skateboard park or some other thing for the kids," says van Dam.

Though van Dam says she is willing to help out again for the school, she says it probably won't be for a while yet.

"I've learned a lot and it's been fun," she says.

"I hope everyone comes out and uses the court, I believe it will be well used."

The basketball court will be open until 11 p.m.

Young Albertan's talent scouted

A Three Hills girl was among four Albertans who took part in what promised to be a giant step in her music career.

Kyra Gallant was part of a group of young entertainers from Fort McMurray, Dewberry, Calgary and Three Hills that headed to Edmonton to sing for a talent-seeking crowd of agents, managers, and arts presenters October 16 and 17 at Showcase '97.

Showcase, now in its 20th year, is an annual arts marketing conference co-sponsored by Alberta Community Development and the Arts Touring Alliance of Alberta. Each fall, arts organizers from across the province attend Showcase to sample live performances that they can contract to appear in their communities.

Although not in the regular Showcase line-up of seasoned touring performers, the young Albertan talent was set to impress audiences at the Showcase 20th Anniversary Dinner, October 16 and the Minister's Dinner and Awards on October 17. Community Development Minister Shirley McClellan spoke on both evenings. Gallant performed on October 16.

At the age of 14 Gallant, a singer and guitarist, has already grabbed the attention of many radio music directors, major label producers and newspaper reporters who have given her rave reviews. She was a finalist in the Calgary Stampede Youth Talent Showdown two years running. Gallant has record a demo tape which is receiving air play in Alberta and plans to recorded original material soon. She performs at trade shows, weddings, festivals and sporting events.

Others teens who participated in the Showcase were Dave Kirschmer of Fort McMurray, Selina Wong of Calgary, and Nathan Brown of Dewberry/Lloydminster.

Area residents do well at Rodeo finals

The second annual Canadian Team Cattle Penning Association (CTCPA) National Finals was held at the Calgary Stampede Grounds Oct. 10 to 13. There were over 400 teams competing in five different classes at the Stampede Corral. The show was truly a national finals as teams from New Brunswick to B.C. were represented.

The format was such that each team received two runs, total time on two runs determined who would be the top 20 teams to compete in the semi-finals on Oct. 13. Then the top ten of those 20 had another run with time combined with their semi-final run to determine the winners of each class.

An over high point rider from the open #9, and #7 Class was awarded the use of a Cam Clark Ford 150 pick-up for one year. The winner of the #5 Class was awarded the use of a BAR T5 Agra Services horse trailer for one year. Runner-up high point riders in each class each received a monogrammed Big D Blanket.

Team winners from each class each received a Becker Buckle, monogrammed coat from the Tack Shop and cash. The team of Linda Burrell, Cam

Clark and Shaylene Glastone won the open class. Linda, from Sundre and Cam and Shaylene from Airdrie. The time on the semi-final run was 33.2 seconds and their time on the final run was 28.8 seconds.

Leisurely lifestyle leads to obesity

You're not alone if you think you're the only one that's worried about the increasing pounds being put on over the years.

Obesity is a disease with a prevalence that is spreading rapidly in Canada and around the world. A recent report by the World Health Organization notes that obesity is doubling every five years, signifying an epidemic that could become a disastrous health problem. Obesity rates in Canada are among the highest in the world and are continuing to rise; it is projected that currently over one third of Canadians are obese or overweight.

Obesity defined

Obesity is probably the oldest metabolic disorder; evidence of it goes back as far as recorded history. The medical community agrees that people become obese when there is an imbalance between energy intake (calories) and energy expenditure. However, a number of factors can contribute to obesity: an individual's genetic makeup, disorders in brain neurotransmitters, hormones, resting metabolic rate, environment, level of physical activity and diet, especially fat intake.

How to determine obesity

In Canada, obesity is defined according to the, "Canadian Guidelines for Healthy Weights" Body Mass Index

(BMI) ranges. The BMI is a widely used and accepted formula that calculates whether an individual's weight is in proportion to his/her height. According to the 'Guidelines', a BMI greater than 27 results in an increased risk of developing health problems; this applies to one-third of the Canadian population.

Obesity and its related health problems

"Obesity rates are increasing in Canada," said Dr. Lawrence Leiter Director of the Lipid Clinic at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto. "And since being overweight is associated with an increased risk for a number of important disorders, such as diabetes, heart disease and high blood pressure, it is likely that the prevalence of these diseases will also rise."

According to a recent study in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, it is estimated that up to 66 per cent of Type II diabetes, 52 per cent of gallstone disease, 22 per cent of coronary heart disease and 29 per cent of high blood pressure may be attributable to obesity. Also, obesity has been noted as a factor leading to some forms of cancer, high risk pregnancies, some sleep disorders, hormonal dysfunction and increased surgical risks.

Health Canada in its 'Nutrition Recommendations: The Report of the Scientific Review Committee' states that, "...of all the suspected dietary risk factors for heart disease and cancer, obesity is perhaps most closely correlated with an increased risk."

How to improve health risks associated with obesity

The good news, however, is that losing and maintaining a lower weight will improve or reduce the risk of developing the associated diseases. Dr. Irene Hramiak, Director of the Metabolic Day Unit at the London Health Sciences Centre in London, Ontario, states that, "A modest amount of weight loss can offer significant benefit to an individual's overall health. Clinical studies have shown that even a five to 10 per cent weight reduction decreases mortality, improves blood lipid profiles, blood glucose levels and reduces blood pressure."

Obesity treatment

According to a 1995 national health promotion survey, it is estimated that approximately 50 per cent of Canadians want to lose weight. However, treatment for obesity is a complex issue. Healthy eating, especially reducing fat intake, and regular exercise are the cornerstones of treatment, but for obese individuals these steps may not be enough. For some individuals, a program of healthy eating, including reducing fat intake, and increased exercise supported by medication will provide a better chance of long-term success.

Due to increased research, many new tools will be available to physicians treating obesity, and individuals wanting to lose weight. A new generation of medicines are being developed to assist people with their weight loss efforts. The first in many years was recently introduced in Canada and works in the central nervous system to reduce appetite. There are also a number of newer drugs under investigation, including one that is currently being reviewed by Health Canada that works in a novel way not only to help people lose excess weight and fat, but also maintain a healthy weight afterwards. This new drug works by decreasing the absorption of fat in the intestine, one of the main contributors to obesity.

01 ANNOUNCEMENTS

I WOULD Like to take this opportunity to express my thanks to everyone in this community for what they have done for me during this tragic time in our lives. Words are not enough right now, to tell you how much it has meant to me and my children to know that so many people care so much. The flowers, cards, phone calls, food, offers of help, visits, etc. have all been a wonderful comfort. It's incredible for me just to realize that so many people were a part of Calvin's life, and will miss him, not in the same capacity that we will, but as a friend and businessman. As well, my children and I have many wonderful memories to cherish that I hope will help us through the dark days. I want to give my special thanks to Al at AG Foods for their generous donations of food and beverages; to the staff at both West Glen and Didsbury High Schools for their support and care; to the partners and staff at Chinook Grain who have handled everything in this time of tragedy; as well as Dr. Mundt and staff at the clinic who have cared for us like family. To everyone else that called, wept and prayed for us, please accept our thanks. I know that this experience has left me a more compassionate, caring person only because of the love and care that so many of you have shown to us. With time and God's help, our sorrow and pain will start to heal. Once again, thank you and God bless.

341 CARD OF THANKS

WE APPRECIATE and find much comfort in all who join us in our sorrow. Our thanks to everyone who came to Calvin's funeral, and to those who couldn't get close enough to hear the service or sign the registry, yet stood respectfully and lovingly by. We are so sorry we hadn't anticipated the need of loud speakers outside the main room. Our thanks also for the many cards, letters, gifts, flowers and charitable donations in Calvin's memory; and to those who phoned and visited and those who so kindly and lovingly served. With heartfelt thanks, Don and Leta Ausenhus and Family. 29-11 MARGARET (SAWAKZKY) Zeitner and family wish to thank those who contributed to a fund raiser to help them out after their fire. Many items have now been replaced. This help was truly appreciated by all of us. 29-11 THANK YOU: I would like to thank the children, relatives and friends for helping me celebrate my 80th birthday. Also thanks for all the lovely cards and gifts. Helen Wright. 29-11
